

Honor Code for IIT Kanpur – a draft

{The following text has been prepared as a follow up to the discussions held in one of the Deans' group meetings in October 2009. It is purely a draft does not have the approval of the competent authority. Consequently, it does not represent the Institute position on the subject. }

Best academic institutions across the globe have always maintained an honor code as integral part of their academic policy and value system. Faculty, staff, and students of such institutions adhere to the applicable honor code in true spirit, implementing it effectively and efficiently. Sample honor codes from Universities around the world are provided in the next page.

Proposal for an honor code

The following code is proposed:

We undertake to conduct all activities - academic, research, and extracurricular in a manner that will only enhance the prestige of the Institute.

Along the lines of the plagiarism policy of this Institute, an honor code is needed to create an environment of discipline and integrity that produces engineers with high ethical values. The honor code of the Institute is an epilogue to the plagiarism policy of the Institute. Failure to adhere to this honor code will result in appropriate repercussions.

Faculty, staff, and students of IIT Kanpur who are important stakeholders of this Institute are expected to adhere to our honor code thus setting an excellent example.

Honor Code

An honor code or an honor system is a set of rules or principles governing a community based on a set of rules or ideals that define what constitutes honorable behavior. The use of an honor code depends on the idea that people (at least within the group) can be trusted to act honorably. Those who are in violation of the honor code can be subject to various sanctions, including the extreme step of expulsion from the Institution.

Examples of Honor Code prevailing at different academic Institutions

- "No member of the Caltech community shall take unfair advantage of any other member of the Caltech community." California Institute of Technology
- "I pledge to uphold the principles of honesty and responsibility at our University." Texas State University
- "On my honor as a student, I have neither given nor received aid on this assignment/exam." University of Virginia

- "At the core of the Cambridge Honor Code is the belief that every student has the right to pursue an education free from the ills caused by any form of intellectual dishonesty."
Cambridge University, UK.
- The University of Texas School of Law sets its Honor Code as a first step in the obligation of its students to the legal profession: "All law students are harmed by unethical behavior by any student. A student who deals dishonestly with fellow law students may be dishonest in the future and harm both future clients and the legal profession." In keeping with this approach to the honor code in the grand scheme of the legal profession, honor code violations are reported to the State Bar of Texas and the violator's home state bar, thus creating an impediment to licensure. UT Law School is unique in that regard.
